

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An aim of an embodiment is to reduce the volume of power modules, especially for electronic motor control devices. An area is formed between cooling elements with the aid of an annular shaped rubber seal. A semi-conductor device is sealed with a sealing compound therein. Both sides of the semi-conductor device can be cooled with cooling bodies enabling the amount of space required for the power module to be reduced.